

Often I don't say what I mean.
I relay conversations that have passed in my head, and create new ones, more true ones.
I think if only....that was what I really meant to say.

But someone beside me giggles and says better luck
next time....

So for practice, for record, for clarification - to rewrite the past in the present and to contribute to the betterment of the future - I have drawn up a little way to materialise them, if not in life at least on paper.

If only....

As it happened:

As it could have happened:

Time:
Place: